

READY TO CREATE MORE PERSONAL LEADERSHIP?

I'd like to offer professional development dialogues that clarifies, empowers and enables your staff (and yourself) to feel purposeful and be more productive. With a focus on solutions and full acceptance of each person's innate abilities, I bring forth authenticity and change. I work with both individual coaching and small groups.

Whether you're running an unemployment agency, a human resource department, a recruitment firm, a union or a career center for university students, I'd be happy to assist. I'm available for both temporary assignments per hour and more long-term projects and employments, preferably in the San Francisco Bay area.

My specialty is communication and creativity, with a past in the advertising industry as a copywriter and inspired by our clients, I like developing products and services, as well as improving the work environment. All this, boils down to developing people, to encourage responsibility and taking initiative together with colleagues. To do so, requires a thorough understanding of motivation that I have focused my university studies on, alongside how organizational cultures work.

As a person, I'm outgoing, action-oriented and open to diversity. I like bringing new perspectives to the table and dare challenge others to help define what is needed. When others succeed with my coaching, I also succeed. Having it beautiful, clean and organized around me, is important to me and I enjoy dancing in my pastime.

Please have a look at my resumé, and don't hesitate to contact me for a meeting, or to try a free coaching session.

Sincerely,

Hannah Telluselle
